

Alex Sanchez <alex.sanchez@ladderingyoursuccess.com>

Scope and Sequence: A Great Example of One!

3 messages

Alex Sanchez <alex.sanchez@ladderingyoursuccess.com>

Mon, Aug 19, 2019 at 9:58 PM

To: Walter Lombard <walter.lombard@ladderingyoursuccess.com>, Festus Amoye <festus.amoye@ladderingyoursuccess.com>, Olay Shorunke <olay.shorunke@ladderingyoursuccess.com>

I have attached a scope and sequence that highlights pacing for the whole year.

Our focus is the daily and weekly lesson plans. Walt this is to clarify some fogginess that you may have regarding how teachers balance curriculum needs over the length of the school year. When deciding what to teach each week I would reference were I was in relation to this type of document. My daily lesson plans were a balance between my kids were and were this document said I needed to be.

Source of document:

<https://www.coppellisd.com/cms/lib/TX01000550/Centricity/Domain/3706/7th%20Gradde%20Texas%20History.pdf>Virus-free. www.avast.com7th Gradde Texas History Scope and Sequence.pdf
195K

Festus Amoye <festus.amoye@ladderingyoursuccess.com>

Tue, Aug 20, 2019 at 11:33 AM

To: Alex Sanchez <alex.sanchez@ladderingyoursuccess.com>

Cc: Walter Lombard <walter.lombard@ladderingyoursuccess.com>, Olay Shorunke <olay.shorunke@ladderingyoursuccess.com>

Good morning,

I love the teamwork that I'm seeing. Has Walt seen the TEKS and Common Core standards that the district level plans are derived from? This is going to be a great conversation tonight.

Blessings,

Festus

On Mon, Aug 19, 2019 at 9:58 PM Alex Sanchez <alex.sanchez@ladderingyoursuccess.com> wrote:

I have attached a scope and sequence that highlights pacing for the whole year.

Our focus is the daily and weekly lesson plans. Walt this is to clarify some fogginess that you may have regarding how teachers balance curriculum needs over the length of the school year. When deciding what to teach each week I would reference were I was in relation to this type of document. My daily lesson plans were a balance between my kids were and were this document said I needed to be.

Source of document:

<https://www.coppellisd.com/cms/lib/TX01000550/Centricity/Domain/3706/7th%20Gradde%20Texas%20History.pdf>Virus-free. www.avast.com

--

Festus A. Amoye

Founder

There are legitimate excuses for not going to college, there is no excuse for not having an education. - Festus Amoye

Alex Sanchez <alex.sanchez@ladderingyoursuccess.com>

Tue, Aug 20, 2019 at 1:30 PM

To: Festus Amoye <festus.amoye@ladderingyoursuccess.com>

Cc: Olay Shorunke <olay.shorunke@ladderingyoursuccess.com>, Walter Lombard <walter.lombard@ladderingyoursuccess.com>

That is all in the scope and sequence.

On Tue, Aug 20, 2019 at 11:34 AM Festus Amoye <festus.amoye@ladderingyoursuccess.com> wrote:

Good morning,

I love the teamwork that I'm seeing. Has Walt seen the TEKS and Common Core standards that the district level plans are derived from? This is going to be a great conversation tonight.

Blessings,

Festus

On Mon, Aug 19, 2019 at 9:58 PM Alex Sanchez <alex.sanchez@ladderingyoursuccess.com> wrote:

I have attached a scope and sequence that highlights pacing for the whole year.

Our focus is the daily and weekly lesson plans. Walt this is to clarify some fogginess that you may have regarding how teachers balance curriculum needs over the length of the school year. When deciding what to teach each week I would reference were I was in relation to this type of document. My daily lesson plans were a balance between my kids were and were this document said I needed to be.

Source of document:

<https://www.coppellisd.com/cms/lib/TX01000550/Centricity/Domain/3706/7th%20Grade%20Texas%20History.pdf>

Virus-free. www.avast.com

--

Festus A. Amoye
Founder

There are legitimate excuses for not going to college, there is no excuse for not having an education. - Festus Amoye